

SUGAR TARIFF WILL CAUSE DISSENSION BEGIN SPIRITED DEBATE

HOUSE DEMOCRATS ARE IN ARMS ON BOTH SIDES OF QUESTION.

Other Washington Happenings—Appointments Are Made by President Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, April 12.—House democrats today began their fight over the sugar tariff schedule. Opponents of the administration rates as proposed in the Underwood bill, began a vigorous stand against the provision of free raw sugar in three years.

By an overwhelming majority the house democratic caucus today voted down amendment to the sugar tariff schedule proposed by Representative Broussard of Louisiana and supported by members from the sugar states to eliminate the provision for free sugar in three years and provide an immediate ten per cent reduction to be followed by gradual reductions for six years. The vote against it was 86 to 15.

Senate met at noon President protem Clark presided for the first time. Several nominations from President Wilson received. Bill to authorize national banks to loan money on real estate introduced by Senator Nelson. Coast guard service to be composed of the life saving and revenue cutter service proposed in a bill by Senator Townsend. Primary elections for nominations of presidential and vice presidential candidates proposed in bill by Senator Cummins.

Chairman Underwood began the argument in defense of the schedule detailing the long careful study the committee had given to the sugar question.

Amendments proposed by Representative Broussard were opposed by the free sugar champions led by Representative Hardwick of Georgia, who offered an amendment that raw sugar be placed on the free list at once without any gradual reduction.

Mr. Hardwick's against a gradual reduction was that it was discrimination in favor of segregated industries in Louisiana and the best states. Anti-free wool democrats from nearly twenty states determined if outvoted in the caucus to exempt themselves from the binding caucus pledge and to continue the fight in the house.

It took the senate elections committee less than 15 minutes today to exonerate Carl E. Ueber, assistant keeper of the senate of Senator Gore's charge that he had been responsible for the disappearance of one of the important papers of the first trial of William Lorimer. Senator Gore did not appear before the committee.

Senator Kern today introduced a resolution calling for a federal investigation of the coal strike in West Virginia and another to compensate employees of the United States who suffer injury or acquire occupational diseases in the course of their work.

Among the nominations sent to the senate today by President Wilson, were: To be third assistant secretary of state, Dudley Field Malone, of New York;

To be counselor of the state department, John Bassett Moore, of New York;

To be United States judge for the southern district of Florida, Rhodon M. Call;

To be United States marshal northern district of Texas William J. McDonald. The last named served as the president's bodyguard during the recent campaign and is known as a decent shot and a stranger to fear.

Secy. Bryan, when told of the Japanese government's instructions to Ambassador Chinda, as recorded in news dispatches, did not make formal representations in regard to the California land legislation construed as anti-Japanese. He expressed only the sentiment that it would be time to consider formal representations after the laws in question had been passed by the California legislature and were under consideration by the government.

Walter H. Page, who is to be nominated for ambassador to Great Britain, paid his respects to Ambassador Bryce today and later had luncheon with President Wilson at the White House.

President Wilson today told Miss Mable T. Boardman he would accept the presidency of the American National Red Cross to succeed former President Taft, who relinquished the office upon his retirement to private life.

War on the fumes of tobacco in the senate was begun again today by Senator Tillman, who introduced a resolution prohibiting smoking in the chamber or the bringing of a lighted cigar through the senate doors.

President Wilson conferred today with Senator Martin and Representative Fitzgerald, chairman of the senate and house appropriations committee about the early passage of a sundry civil bill. Mr. Fitzgerald said the measure probably would be introduced from the floor of the house in almost the identical form which it reached. Mr. Taft who vetoed it. What position the president would take was not made clear at the White House.

Rosa Measure for Referendum on Constitutional Convention Turned Down.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., April 12.—Friends of the plan for a state referendum on the submission of the question of holding a constitutional convention are determined to continue efforts to that end, despite yesterday's action of the assembly in turning down the Rosa measure resolution.

The vote on the measure was 53 to 35. During the afternoon it was decided to move for reconsideration today, arguments on the motion to follow next Tuesday. Judge Rosa's grounds for the proposal were that the ideas of the people are changing and that a better and more up-to-date constitution should now be framed. Assemblyman Roethe attacked it as a plan that would permit the incorporation of half-baked theories, fads and isms into the state's fundamental law.

CALL CAFE OWNERS TO GIVE TESTIMONY

Agents of Illinois Vice Commission Cause Sensation in Serving Subpoenas on Restaurant Managers.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Chicago, April 12.—Agents of the Illinois vice commission late last night and early today brought consternation to the fashionable guests of two downtown restaurants, Regent and States, against whose reputations there rested no question except the nature of their cabaret entertainments.

From these cafes only the managers and members of the cabaret shows were subpoenaed. They were questioned by the vice commission as to "smut" songs which are alleged features of cabarets.

From the tenderloin men and women sight-seers out slumming were gathered and brought before the commission. One woman, in hysterical fear of disgrace, tried to jump from a window when the invader with their subpoenas reached a restaurant in the vice district. Another fell on her knees and wept. A man jammed a roll of bills into the hands of an officer.

"Take this for God's sake," he cried, "and let my party go. You don't know what this means."

Officers kept the rushing mob, some weeping, some laughing hysterically, from the doors and finally restored order. Then they were bundled into automobiles and taken down town to testify before the welfare commission.

The men arrested at Hazelton are held so far as known only on the local charge of carrying burglar tools.

He charges that the members of the legislature have very little to say about the disposition of bills introduced and say the university is meddling with the affairs of the people's representatives. He says everytime a bill is put up a long-haired professor is called in and if he strikes his head the bill is doomed. He said when a bill gets before the assembly the bill cow farmers get on the job, give the signal and the rest of the farmers vote accordingly.

POPE PIUS IS WORSE BUT HOPE IS STILL BEING ENTERTAINED

Physician Says He is Not Surprised When Told He Received Audiences Friday.

Rome, April 12.—The Pope has suffered another relapse. Tracheal bronchitis has developed. 6:10 P. M.—The Pope's fever has reached 103. Prof. Marchiafava this morning predicted a relapse when he heard that contrary to his instructions the Pope had been allowed to grant private audiences.

He said: "If you want to kill him this is the way to do it." The sisters of the Pope were deeply distressed by the relapse. They resumed their nursing of the patient.

The condition is regarded as grave especially so on account of his weak state. This has caused the fear to arise that he will be unable to overcome the new attack.

The relapse is not yet generally known even among Vatican officials. The Osservatore Romano, the Vatican official newspaper published this evening the following bulletin:

"On April 7 the Pope fell ill with a relapse of influenza with symptoms of tracheal bronchitis. The fever stopped three days ago, but returned today with aggravation of catarrh in the thorax.

There are no symptoms to cause alarm. Signed, Marchiafava, and Amici."

EARLY MORNING REPORT

Rome, April 12.—The improvement in the condition of the Pope is so marked that Professor Marchiafava is considering the advisability of ceasing to visit the pontiff. His great effort is now directed at bettering the patient's appetite. The Pope arose from bed today and went to the window overlooking the piazza.

While There's Life There's Hope

THERE'S HOPE FOR EVERYBODY
You who are sick can afford to be well. Let me submit the PROOF. Hundreds of ailing ones who have run the whole gamut of promised cures, patent medicines, physicians, manipulators, faith healers etc., are passing hours of misery today from lack of knowledge or lack of belief, in the most wonderful science known to man—CHIROPRACTIC.

In my work in Janesville during the past four years I have demonstrated to the believer and unbeliever alike that the Chiropractic science is the one unfailing way to correct the spinal column and let Nature rid the body of disease.

Let me convince you by testimony and proof that the way to find health is through my Chiropractic adjustments.

Chiropractic is not like anything you have tried before—it isn't massage or electricity—it isn't magnetic healing, osteopathy or faith cure. I do not use a knife, drugs or medicine or any of the usual methods used to treat effects.

I go after the CAUSE of disease and simply straighten out conditions of the body that produce disease.

HERE'S ONE ITEM OF PROOF Suffering Humanity:

A great pleasure is afforded me to be able to testify to the merits of Chiropractic adjustments. I am satisfied that the Chiropractor removes the cause of disease. Up to the time I called on the local Chiropractor, J. N. Imlay, I had suffered the tortures of sick headache for four years, having an attack practically every day. Am pleased to say to the sufferers of this disease since taking my first adjustment have not had an attack.

EXPLAINS SITUATION AS TO LOCATION OF THE LINEN FACTORY

Adverse Criticism of Action of Commercial Club as Regards Failure To Secure Factory Explained.

In view of the fact that there has been adverse criticism of the method employed by the Commercial Club as regards the location of the United States Linen factory, which went to Beloit instead of Janesville the following statement signed by T. E. Lane, Edward Amerpohl and C. A. Buchholz will explain mistaken ideas. The statement is as follows:

As there has been so much criticism of the Commercial club regarding the location of the United States Linen Company, which located at Beloit, it is deemed advisable to publish the facts regarding our connection with the proposition.

Last April Mr. Gorton, representing this company, called at the Club office and stated that he was seeking a location for their factory, and was seeking information. The Secretary gave him all the information possible. He, also, called up several men, and finally secured Mr. Edward Amerpohl, and Mr. Carl Buchholz to accompany Mr. Gorton, and himself, on an automobile trip around the city.

Mr. Gorton was shown every available site around the city and conditions were explained to him. He was favorably impressed with the location and building of the Cement Post Factory.

When leaving he promised to return later with Mr. Hess, president of the U. S. Linen Co., which he did, arriving here unexpectedly about 11:00 a. m., May 17th, and wanted to get out on the one o'clock interurban. After unsuccessfully attempting to get some of the members together the Secretary secured an automobile and took Mr. Gorton and Mr. Hess around to the different locations. Mr. Hess stated that he had several locations in the State under consideration, and was investigating conditions thoroughly. Mr. Hess said the only concession they wanted from any city was the site, while the club had no site over which it could exercise positive control, yet Mr. Hess was assured that there would be no trouble in this respect if he decided to locate here; the Secretary feeling certain that if Janesville was selected a satisfactory site could be readily secured.

Mr. Hess, Mr. Gorton and the Secretary had lunch together, and before leaving on the one o'clock interurban, Mr. Hess requested the Secretary to write him at Glenwood, Illinois, regarding the Cement Post Factory, which he did. He, also, assured Mr. Lane that he would again visit Janesville before deciding on a location for their plant.

Following is a copy of letter addressed to Mr. Hess:

May 17, 1912.
Mr. C. W. Hess,
Box H,
Glenwood, Illinois.
Dear Sir:
Referring to our conversation regarding the factory you looked over while in Janesville.
I have taken the matter up with Mr. Rubin and he informs me that it is only necessary to drill from fifteen to twenty feet to secure an abundant quantity of water. At present they have two wells sunk in the building.
The price he is asking for the land, buildings and side tracks is $20,000.
Yours very truly,
C. A. BUCHHOLZ,
EDW. AMERPOHL,
FRANK E. LANE.

The next we knew of the proposition was the announcement in the Beloit paper that they had located the U. S. Linen Company.

Encouraged by the substantial support given to their efforts of the past few years to popularize standard opera, Milton and Sergeant Aborn declared their intention to add each season at least one opera to the number to which they will give a spectacular production on the same gigantic lines as that now being given to "The Bohemian Girl," which will be presented here shortly. The opera selected for presentation this season is "The Chimes of Normandy."

"A THOROUGHbred TRAMP," which will be the attraction at the Myers Theater on Sunday, April 13, matinee and evening, is a powerful comedy drama telling a beautiful story combining humor, pathos, heart interest, and thrilling realism. There is a strong vein of comedy a laughable nature that more than pleases.

The story is written around incidents of a celebrated case of New York life, well written and not unreal or stagy. It is one of the best comedy dramas of today written by a playwright who has given the public some of the very best dramas of recent years. "A Thoroughbred Tramp," will be presented by a competent company with the eminent emotional actress, Miss Josephine Wowsay in the leading feminine role and support by such people as Louise Wren of "Jekyll and Hyde" fame, Hal Williams, Frank Carman and others in the cast.

A Few Facts Concerning Mechano Therapy.

It is the science of the treatment of disease by the latest and most scientific means of structural adjustment by manipulation and correct hand massage. It affects directly, the nervous, vascular, handular and muscular systems; it relieves nerve pressure by adjusting luxations or subluxations, that might exist in or along the spinal column from whence the greater number of nerves emanate, and are likewise subject to undue pressure caused from injury or congestion along the spiral vertebra. It increases the circulation therefore it strengthens and frees the action.

Mechano Therapy is applied in many ways and to all ailments which are caused by injury, or lack of proper nerve stimulation, or blood supply, thus perfect health through perfect circulation.

With Mechano Therapy are used Thermo Therapy and Vibro Therapy, which are applied when necessary to hasten circulation, or increase nerve stimulation, thus by these combined methods quick relief is accomplished, and people who are looking for the best will not go away disappointed. This method is worth your earnest investigation and if you need this kind of help, don't wait for your neighbor to try it first, you get busy yourself and be first. Lady to assist lady patients.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

Northern people who have never been privileged to enjoy an old-fashioned Southern fish fry may be interested to know something about them. One was held recently at Punta Gorda, De Soto county, on the southwestern coast of Florida.

The occasion was a mass meeting called to consider the division of the county, which is one of the largest in the state, having an area of some thirty-seven hundred square miles and a population of about fourteen thousand.

The southern half of the county, representing about half the land and water, and one-third of the population, proposes to secede and establish a county seat at Punta Gorda, a town of a thousand people, and the only one of any importance in the district.

The big hotel with three hundred rooms, built in boom times, and closed for the past ten years, had been repaired and refurnished, and after a short season closed the last of March.

The beautiful grounds between the house and the water front were thrown open to the public, and here in a tropical grove the fish fry was held.

Just outside the grounds a couple of colored brothers presided as cooks. Over a roaring fire a cauldron, the size of an old-fashioned soap kettle, was suspended, half filled with boiling lard.

If you remember how your grandmother used to fry doughnuts, you can imagine how the fish, dropped in to this hot receptacle, and turned with a four-tined pitch fork, came out in a minute crisp and brown and ready to serve.

The fish used were mullet, weighing from half a pound to a pound, the most common, and one of the best varieties in the South. In the center of the park, under wide-spreading trees, a long table was provided and this was soon piled high with wooden plates containing a slice of bread, a pickle and a smoking fish.

Then everybody helped themselves, and the lawn was soon covered with little groups in summer attire, and the fun was on.

The train from the north was due at noon, and word was quietly passed around that Colonel Roosevelt would be on board, bound for Fort Myers to visit Thomas A. Edison, at his winter home.

When the train pulled in, a crowd gathered, and called for a speech. A traveling man responded from the rear platform, and suggested that the first day of April only comes once a year. It developed later that neither Mr. Edison nor Colonel Roosevelt were in Florida.

After dinner the crowd was entertained by local talent. The man who introduced the speakers said that De Soto county contained a conservative, or dead element, in the northern part of the county, while the progressives, in the southern part, believed in doing things, and that was why they wanted a new county.

It reminded him of the story of the farmer who had the misfortune to carry to the creamery one morning a can of milk containing two frogs—one a progressive, and the other a conservative.

The progressive frog was very active and jumped around, all the way to town, in efforts to get out. When the can was opened he sat near the top on a ball of butter which he had churned on the way in, while his conservative neighbor was dead, in the bottom of the can. The story pointed its own moral.

To a disinterested onlooker, the question of county division is very much like Wisconsin politics—anything to create office and get a chance at the public crib.

The assessed real estate value of the county is less than four million dollars, and personal property about half that amount. There is some good land in the county, but a great deal more that isn't worth the taxes, and never will be, while there are miles of water, too shallow for navigation, and too salty for a beverage.

The government owned quite a tract of land, in the county, which was thrown open to settlement three years ago. About one hundred and fifty families, inspired by a desire to get something for nothing, are attempting to redeem it, but the efforts will be largely futile, and more landmarks of deserted homes will dot the landscape within the next decade.

There is one crop in southern Florida which is better this year than last, and likely to improve for many years to come, and that is the crop of alligators.

petition from India, and buyers have been instructed to buy no more American skins. The Seminole Indians of the Everglades are the principal losers, and unless the government comes to their relief, they will suffer. The Indians and alligators have been practically the sole occupants of the lower Everglades for many years. The tribe is being depleted every year, and the alligator will soon be the sole survivor, blue-prints, promoters and drainage canals to the contrary notwithstanding.

There are but few birds of plumage in southern Florida, and aside from the mocking bird, song birds are extremely rare. These conditions exist because the birds are wantonly destroyed. The robin is a game bird, and more difficult to find than the quail.

The buzzard and pelican are numerous because the law protects them, and the bald-head eagle is always on the alert to watch for wounded ducks which the hunter fails to pick up.

The pelican, with his long beak and grandfather face, is an interesting study as he sits on the channel stakes or soars over the water in the harbor in search of food.

When the tide comes in, shoals of minnows, followed by all kinds of fish, sometimes come in with it, and then these big birds of prey are in their glory. Swooping down they strike the water with a splash which can be heard for half a mile, and then set on the water to devour their catch.

C. M. Marston, a correspondent for the Chicago Record-Herald, spent some time at St. Petersburg, and became very much interested in watching these birds on their feeding ground.

He was surprised at their enormous capacity for food, and gave expression to his astonishment in the following stanza, which was published yesterday in the Tampa Tribune. It will be appreciated by people familiar with the habits of the bird. Here it is:

"A gorgeous bird is a pelican,
Whose beak will hold more than his bellican.

He can put in his beak food enough for a week,

But I'm d— if I can see how in hellican."

The snakes of Florida are largely a myth. You can tramp the woods for a month without seeing a rattler, and other varieties, which are not numerous, are harmless. A "coach whip" measuring seven and one-half feet, was brought in by some hunters, the other day. When skinned and cut open, a young rabbit, on which he had just dined, was found in his stomach.

The fish fry is a family as well as a public affair. The launch takes the place of the touring car, and the Sunday dinner is on the banks of some stream, where the odor of frying fish and steaming coffee, never fail to produce an appetite.

With a summer climate, through all the long winter months, it is not surprising that northern people find the state of Florida a paradise, where every taste may be gratified, from the display of wealth on the east coast at ten dollars a day, to the more humble environments of the west coast at ten dollars a week. You pay your money and take your choice, and are always glad to get back home.

The Windflowers Are Out.

(Contributed)
The winter months have passed
But still the cold winds blow;
We forget the "Rainbow Promise,"
That the seasons shall come and go.

We seek the sunny side of the street;
We draw our furs close about,
But here comes one with a rosy face,
Why! "The wind flowers are out."

And where did I get them?
Oh, the same old place.
On a black hill side,
Hence my rosy face.

Where cold winds blow,
And frost is still around,
Their purple chalice moss-like sheath
Come peeping from the ground.

Their fragrance is not striking
But it speaks of Mother Earth,
From whose rocks and sand and mold
They so lately had their birth.

Hardy pioneers are they
On Wisconsin soil,
Free to those who care to seek
A reward to those who toil.

If flowers have a message
This is what they bring,
When winds blow bleak, take courage,
For it will soon be spring.

CARY TAKES ISSUE AS TO LOW RANKING OF STATE SCHOOLS

State Superintendent Gives Out Statement in Regard to Wisconsin's Educational Standing, Mail- ing in Campaign.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., April 12.—Reports as to Wisconsin's relative standing educationally, used in the recent contest for the state superintendency received attention by State Superintendent C. P. Cary in a formal statement today. Mr. Cary says:

Educational Standing.
"We have heard much in a political way in the last few weeks regarding Wisconsin's educational standing. It has been shouted from the house-tops that we rank twenty-eighth as to our educational system. As political bunk such statements are not worth a moment's consideration and from that point of view I would not dignify it by so much as a reference. However, there is no question in my mind that the people who got out this report were entirely innocent of politics and had in view simply the publicity of certain educational facts of general interest. I presume nobody in the state of Wisconsin has any idea that our rank educationally in twenty-eighth. This is not altogether a matter of blind state pride or prejudice. Certainly any well-informed person knows that in the matter of efficiency we do not rank twenty-eighth, but, on the other hand, nobody knows definitely where we do rank.

"We do know this, however, that to bring up any country school or any city system of schools to a high degree of efficiency and maintain that standing is an extremely difficult task,—so difficult indeed that it is rarely accomplished to the satisfaction of intelligent critics. To bring up the schools of a whole state to a high degree of proficiency is a task that requires the co-operation of a whole state and it required that emphasis should be placed where the emphasis belongs. To say that Wisconsin schools, even the best of them, are far below what we all earnestly desire they should be is to utter merely a truism.

For Better Ranking.
"But let us direct our attention briefly to the significance of the Russell Sage Foundation report. To put the matter into a nutshell, what would Wisconsin have to do in order to stand first in every particular mentioned in this report? The reply can be given almost in a single word, namely, double our expenditures on money for educational purposes. We would have to double our teachers' salaries. We would have to more than double our investment in school property. We would have to more than double the expenditures for every pupil. In the matter of taxation, on every one hundred dollars of assessed valuation of the state, it would be necessary to increase by two or three fold. All this we should have to do if other school systems stood still in this matter of expenditure of money.

"There is one other thing we should have to do in order to make entirely sure of our ranking. It would be necessary largely to increase our school attendance. When this is said the whole story is told as to what Wisconsin must do if she wishes to rank well in the next Carnegie Foundation report.

Needs Explanation.
"It should be explained that this report takes children from the age of five to eighteen and on that basis nearly twenty-five per cent of our children are not in school. Many children do not enter at five and many drop out of school in the years between fourteen and eighteen. We have almost identically the same ratio of children not enrolled in any school that Minnesota has. Those who have been using this report so freely have not been careful to explain all these matters to the people.

"If the state really wants to work for a high ranking in such a per cent, let me repeat, the thing to do is for the people to vote a great deal more money locally and for the legislature to increase greatly the appropriations for school purposes so far as it relates to our elementary schools. It should be borne in mind that it is not simply the country schools that are considered in this report but the graded schools also.

"Wisconsin is sadly handicapped as compared with Minnesota for example, for the reason that Minnesota has a permanent school fund of twenty-one million dollars, as against our four millions.

Crumb of Consolation.
"In order to give you some crumb of consolation, I would add that we have climbed up in your standing on the illiteracy question from the seventeenth place to the thirteenth place in the past ten years, and that we have decreased our illiteracy for all persons over ten years of age by thirty-two per cent. I might further add that in ten years we have increased our total expenditure for public school purposes for every man, woman and child in the state from $2.65 to $4.64 or about seventy-one per cent. If this is not a sufficiently rapid pace you know how to increase it.

Respectfully,
C. P. CARY."

Does Service Count?

If other things were simply equal, you know that The Big Store service would be worth a reasonable premium, because of the care and intelligence with which the public is served and merchandise delivered. But things are not simply equal. The Big Store merchandise is distinctly better than that of other stores. At The Big Store you get more intelligently selected dry Goods, brought about by the Department system, each department head being able to make a close study of his or her particular line, which takes care of hundreds of little details, that the average merchant, in trying to perform too many duties himself, is not physically able to look after; better value in addition to service which, at every point, is the most skilled and intelligent we can possibly secure.

GROWING ENTHUSIASM FOR BOOSTERS' CLUB

TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND CLUB TO BE LAUNCHED UNDER FAVORABLE SIGNS.

EVERY MAN'S MEETING

Men and Women, Old and Young, Invited to Become Members—Two Bands Volunteer Services.

Janesville's Twenty-Five Thousand Club, a monster booster organization made up of laboring men, professional men, merchants, manufacturers, and city officers, in fact, representatives from every walk in life, will be launched under the most favorable auspices at a meeting to be held at the Myers theatre next Tuesday evening. All signs point to a large attendance and unsurpassed enthusiasm, which is even now finding expression in the preliminary arrangements.

The Moose band has offered to donate its services for that evening without charge, and the same favor will be shown by the Bower City band if its members can be gotten together on that occasion. The Lotus Male Quartet and a male chorus will also appear on the program, their services having been volunteered. Large banners carrying the inscription, "Twenty-Five Thousand Booster Club" will be carried by the bands which will give a short concert on the street preceding the meeting. J. P. Bailey & Son have offered to donate the cloth for the banners. Manager Peter Myers has given the use of the Myers theatre for the meeting without cost.

Further arrangements for the launching of the "Twenty-Five Thousand Club" were made at a meeting of the committee on arrangements held last evening at the office of J. P. Richardson. Every member of the committee, consisting of Frank Crook, chairman, S. M. Jacobs, J. W. Van Bynum, William Kehlrow and Mr. Richardson, were in attendance. A definite program has not yet been announced as some details remain to be worked out. Short addresses will be given by men full of enthusiasm and confidence in Janesville, and the plans and purposes of the new organization will be thoroughly explained. Musical number by the male quartets and bands will have a prominent part in the exercises.

The "booster buttons," ordered by the committee, are expected to arrive today. There will be plenty of them, and they will be buttons that anyone will be proud to wear. Every person who joins the club will be entitled to one, and women as well as men, are invited and invited to become members.

The organization will be democratic in every respect. The small membership fee of one dollar was decided upon so that all who desire may become members. Each will be entitled to just one vote, no matter whether he contributes additional sums to the funds of the club. Several subscriptions of more than the membership fee have already been offered. It is expected that papers to be circulated for membership signatures will be ready Tuesday night, at which time they will be passed through the audience.

"Let us bury the hammer" will be the keynote of the booster meeting, and it is probable that a ceremony will be enacted to mark the passing of the "Knocker," the contractors of the city furnishing an enormous hammer for interment. As a tableau to the present and future spirit of Janesville, several suggestions have been made, but none has yet been chosen. There are several implements that might typify the booster, from a lever to a windlass.

SAFETY COMMITTEE

TO MEET AT MADISON

St. Paul Railroad to Hold "Safety First" Rally at Madison on Eighteenth.

On the eighteenth of this month the officials of the Mineral Point and Prairie du Chien divisions are planning a "safety first" rally, to be held at Madison. Since S. E. Decker was placed as superintendent of the Mineral Point division in the place of Mr. Morrison, who was transferred on the Racine and Southeastern, the movement of the crusade against accidents has been given little attention.

The meeting is to be held at the Capital City and the members of the committees from all division points are asked so the movement can be put on a good foundation again. There are about ten or twelve railroad men representing the different departments of work going from Janesville and they, together with the men from other terminals, should make good progress in re-establishing the "safety habit." N. P. Theurer is to be the presiding officer.

WRIT ISSUED WHICH COMPLICATES CASES

CITY CLERK J. P. HAMMARLUND SECURES ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE.

MIDDLEMAN ESSENTIAL DISTRIBUTION FACTOR

COULD NOT BE DISPENSED WITH UNDER CO-OPERATIVE STATE OF AFFAIRS.

DANGER IN CHANGES

Scheme of Direct Buying May Lead to Strange Conflicts Between Producer and Consumer.

(By Ellis B. Usher.)

Milwaukee, April 12.—President Van Hise of the University spoke here this noon before the City Club on the subject of co-operation as a remedy for the high cost of living. The subject is one of general state interest at this time, especially as Governor McGovern has given it emphasis, with his commission and his message. The question is a large one and involves the readjustment of many factors of the constituted machinery of supply and demand. If the farmers are to co-operate in the marketing of their produce where it is most needed, at the moment, and will not only bring the best price but will serve its purpose with least waste, then some farmers must become expert enough in such matters to fill the place of the middleman, which will ultimately mean a new order of middle men. The commission merchant here, in Milwaukee, for example, finds out by long distance telephone every morning, not only where he can best dispose of his produce, that is, where it is wanted, but if he has a call from a dealer in Chicago, or St. Louis or St. Paul for some article of food supply which he hasn't on hand, he immediately combs his field, by long distance, to see if it is to be had. This is not only his business, the business by which his bread is earned, but it constitutes a suggestion of the great complex machinery of distribution. If he is put out of business somebody must take his place, for it is said that no great city ever has food enough on hand to feed its people for twenty-four hours. The middleman's work must be done, whether he does it, or the farmer, or the market gardener. Distribution comes pretty close to being a science in these days of telephone communication, and telegraphic night letters. The middleman in Oshkosh or La Crosse is in very close touch with the fruit and vegetable grower of the south, at this time of year, for instance. He buys by wire.

An interesting case of doing away with the middleman is just announced here, in this city. The Milwaukee Street Railway is establishing grocery stores in its own bus, for the sections of the city and proposes to buy in wholesale and sell meats, eggs, groceries, etc., to its employees at actual cost. The retail grocers are up in arms. They say, what I am inclined to think is true, that the scheme is Socialistic and that it will deprive the retailers of $120,000 a month in trade. If the railroads should go into the business of feeding their employees, at cost, what would that mean? That the food trade of about 25 per cent of the people of Wisconsin would be taken away from the retailers, as well as the middleman, if the thing should be carried out to its logical sequence. If the co-operation is good for the farmers, why not for the railroad employee? This could come pretty near controlling the market, and if they got a little careless with the cars of the farmer's co-operative societies for one day, if they thought the farmers were "sticking them," they could levy huge reprisals. As it looks to a man up a tree there is only one logical end to that sort of a road. Either the shoe-maker had best stick to his last, or the state will run everything and everybody will be working for the state and nobody will have any real responsibility. And then you'll go around in a circle, for when the people are the state, the anomaly is complete.

But if legislation is going to regulate the laws of nature and the laws of supply and demand, we might all as well co-operate now, as later. Everybody's business is a good deal easier to look after than one's own. It is a heap easier to give advice than to follow it.

New Tariff Legislation.

It has been a matter of some curiosity to fathom the contradictory reports as to business conditions, for several years, but the new Secretary of Commerce, Mr. Redfield, made a statement the other day, in New York, that was a stunner. He said that the manufacturers of the United States are shipping $1,500,000,000 of their products, annually, to foreign countries, and that these exports have grown at the rate of $500,000 a month, the present fiscal year. That indicates that there is a way to account for the prosperity of so many large concerns when there are others that call business "rather slow." Naturally this happy situation is attributed just now, to our tariff laws. The new proposal for a reduction of the tariff has already brought protests from Wisconsin beet sugar makers, clothing mills, shoe manufacturers, and others, and we will soon know that Wisconsin zinc, paper, tobacco, butter and cheese, barley, lumber, and what not, is to suffer if the tariff is touched. Perhaps Mr. Wilson has found a real political issue. When men's pockets are touched their logic is less vague than when they are merely progressing. Wisconsin has many interests that have been built up on the theory that they must have protection, so Wisconsin will have to show its hand. It is now twenty years since the tariff had prominence, a new generation is voting, and the system of protection is much more deeply rooted than it was in Cleveland's day. Now, too, is the new proposition, "Do you want $50,000,000 taken off the sugar tariff, and added to your income tax?" Of course, right here comes, in the tariff discussion, the fundamental progressive idea, that a statute will make the sun to shine, the grass to grow, the crops to yield, wages high and food cheap. It's the whole story in a nut shell. The country now believes in it thoroughly, and no modern politician who believes in statutory interference with supply and demand, can be anything but a protectionist and be consistent. When the tariff goes down, it will all go. It will never be lowered piecemeal. So there's very little need for its friends to worry about it.

An Advertisement for the Erie Railroad is now taking all the business that comes. General Agent Phaeff tells me that the road is practically in order again. The Erie is north of the field of the worst floods in Ohio, and it was lucky in having a great force of men double-tracking the west end, who could be hurried to the work of repair.

It is expected that the first boat east of the Erie Railroad Lake Line will be the Owego and that she will pass here a week from tomorrow, or thereabout.

Morgan Anecdote.

Here is a good story of the late Mr. Morgan, which contains a lesson that deserves general attention. The one who told it did so with the preface—"Mr. Morgan 'liked fair play'." He had caused some rather tense minutes at a meeting of the executive committee of the Steel Corporation, a time when the martial affairs of a then executive of the company were very much in the public eye. Some members of the committee were of the opinion that the notoriety was harmful to the prestige of the great corporation, and one moved that the offender be declared vacant. The motion was seconded and approved orally by several, and tacitly by others. The motion was about to be put to a vote, when Mr. Morgan said: "It seems to me, gentlemen, that we are entering upon a rather extensive field. It may be that those who have preceded me are right. However, I did not consider this man's morals when we retained him. We thought him a 'great steel man.' I think so now, and I still consider him an asset. If we must interfere with the moral of our employees, let us begin right here, right at this board, at the head, if you please."

It is said that the motion was promptly tabled. The pith of it, is not that Mr. Morgan was upholding bad morals, for he was not, but that he despised hypocrisy. The test that he put to the Steel Board, might, for instance, be put to the Wisconsin legislature that permitted crooked strawberry boxes to be used up before reform was applied to berry boxes. To put it straight, it is a good thing to apply your morals at home and there will be less need of the 1100 new Wisconsin laws, that were passed at the last session two years ago, or of the 2000 bills before this legislature, most of which are intended to make "the other fellow" good.

Short Notes.

If it is a lie that the University is in politics, President Van Hise owes it to himself to call this month's World Work to account for it has a very intimate article telling about "A University that Runs a State." It is unfortunate to have the institution thus continually and persistently misrepresented.

It is announced that President Frederick D. Underwood of the Erie Railroad, will be one of the speakers at the annual dinner of the Light Horse Squadron, on the 22nd. It will be the thirty-third annual gathering of this troop.

Mr. Patrick J. Cudahy this week purchased one of the paintings that has been exhibited at the galleries of the Milwaukee Art Society. It represents a Pueblo Indian "Weaving the Wedding Gown," and was painted by Consee. The price was $25,000.

Vice President Alonzo Burt of the Central District of the Bell Telephone System, is authority for the statement that the floods damaged their lines $1,000,000 in Ohio and Indiana.

Blanche Bates and Mme. Nazimova will both appear at the Davidson next week. "Bella Donna" is Nazimova's play and Miss Bates will appear in "The Witness for the Defense." Neither woman needs introduction to lovers of good acting.

SPECIAL INSTITUTE AT TRAINING SCHOOL

Subject of "Health and Hygiene" Will Be Treated by Expert Lecturer.

—Other School Notes.

On Friday and Saturday of next week, April 18 and 19, the training school will conduct a two-day institute upon the general subject of Health and Hygiene. Theodore Werle of Milwaukee, an expert lecturer and lecturer in this field of work, will have charge of the program. The teachers of the city and county are cordially invited to come to the lectures, which will be given in the training school rooms at 10:30 a. m. and 2:30 p. m. each day. Questions may be asked and a round table discussion held at the close of each half-day session. A popular lecture will be given in the high school room on Friday evening, April 18, and the public are cordially invited. The discussions will be of especial value to teachers and to mothers. It is hoped that several will be able to attend. Look for notices in the papers and elsewhere next week. No charge whatever.

The faculty of the training school met Supt. Antisdel, Supt. Buell and Prof. Roethe Thursday evening at the county superintendent's office for the purpose of arranging a program for the teachers' institute to be held in July.

Several of the members of the senior class are teaching in country school this week for the sake of practice.

The agriculture class expects to do some work in testing seeds as soon as the soil and weather permit. In the meantime it is expected that Mr. Ranssler will lecture to the students on this subject.

Nellie Maloy of Evansville has not been able to enter school this week on account of illness.

The following seniors are teaching country schools this week: Esther Barnum, Florence Bradford, Mabel Francis, Katherine Knight, Margaret Mawhinney and Lydia Sommerfeldt.

Mabel Francis visited relatives in Fond du Lac during the vacation.

Hazel Logan is out of school owing to the fact that her mother was obliged recently to undergo a serious surgical operation in Chicago.

Blanche Carney of Janesville visited the training school on Thursday as the guest of her friend, Alice Lowery.

Principal S. M. Thomas of the Columbia county training school was a caller at the home of Principal Lowth recently. Mr. Thomas inspected the Rock county training school rooms and equipment and expressed himself as well pleased with the evidence of up-to-dateness and progress.

The members of the senior class will each take part in a debate this quarter. Three questions are now scheduled.

Are you one you can't work, can you?

Two tramps sat down by the roadside to eat their dinner. Jack had five biscuits and Mike had three, and this was their whole stock of provisions. A third one came along who had nothing to eat, but he had eight pennies, which he gave the others for his dinner. Thereupon, they all made their meal from the eight biscuits, sharing them equally among the three. Afterward a dispute arose as to the division of the pennies. Mike claimed that he should have three pennies and Jack five. But Jack thought he was entitled to seven, and Mike but one. Which one was right?

A country teacher is in danger of becoming narrow and mechanical. Her success depends on her keeping worked up and abreast of the times. Fellow teacher, what means are you taking to prevent stagnation and spiritual death?

All people who are interested, and this includes quite a number, should take notice that there is to be no summer session of the training school this year. Instead, Supt. Antisdel will run a first-class three weeks' institute for the benefit of all who need the academic and professional work. The institute will open on Monday, July 7th, and be held in the high school building.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

POCKETS.

By Howard L. Rann.

POCKETS are small, obscure receptacles in men's clothes which retain everything except money. This is illustrated by the fact that many a man has come home at night with $15 tucked away in his vest pocket and gone down town in the morning without carrying on account of having married a kleptomaniac disguised as a helpmeet.

When a man orders a suit of clothes made, he has pockets scattered all through it and deposits small change in each pocket, in the hope that his wife will miss one and leave the price of a shave in it. This is usually a vain hope, however, for when a woman sets about to burglarize a pair of pants she manages to leave nothing but the buttons. It is getting so that out of pure self-defense a great many husbands have a compartment sewed over the left hip, equipped with a time clock attachment and a burglar alarm.

Women do not wear pockets, as they are never allowed to carry any money. Once in a while a woman will get hold of a small piece of money from some relative, upon which she will do one of two things. She will either hide it on the top shelf of the pantry, behind the baking powder can, so that her husband can't get hold of it and squander it on the grocery bill, or she will place it in her handbag and then leave the bag on the ribbon counter. Most of the discord in the American home is caused by a stubborn wife who refuses to allow her husband to spend the residue of her father's estate in payment of back rent.

Small boys' clothes are nine parts pockets and one part fit and are made to hold everything from a fish hook to a can of angleworms. It is a bigger job to invoice the contents of a small boy's pants than it is to take stock in a 10-cent store. When a boy stands on his head in the parlor, plunder will rain out of him and sound like a melee in a pawn shop.

The Daily Novelette

THE CASE

TALENT DISPLAYED AT ANNUAL CONTEST

ENTHUSIASTIC AUDIENCE ENJOYS PROGRAM OF UNUSUAL EXCELLENCE AT HIGH SCHOOL.

DECISIONS ARE CLOSE

Evelyn Welsh Wins Honors in Declamations, Allen Dearborn in Oratory and Victor Hemming in Extemporaneous.

Exceptional talent for high school students was displayed at the annual contest which was enjoyed by an enthusiastic audience at the high school auditorium last evening. Miss Evelyn Welsh was awarded the Loomis medal for declamations, Miss Catherine Sheridan secured the Mahoney medal for poetry, Allen Dearborn won the Lovejoy medal for orations and Victor Hemming took the honors for extemporaneous speaking and recitation. The Recorder medal. The emblems were presented amid a storm of applause, by Supt. H. C. Buell, following the decision of the judges. Mr. Buell complimented the young people on their work including the other contestants as well as the prize winners in his commendation.

For years past interest in the annual rhetorical event has centered in the declamatory division. The competition has always been very keen and the winner secured an honor highly coveted by the young ladies with the winner of first place, Miss Evelyn Welsh, being the first speaker in her section. She had her selection well in hand, however, and held the audience throughout. Miss Jessica George, winner of second place, was a strong contestant for the honors and captured the audience with her winning manner. Miss Margaret O'Brien proved a strong speaker with a vigorous and expressive delivery, while Misses Betty Cordell and Marion Fletcher were also strong contestants of the calmer type, speaking with quiet impressiveness.

In the extemporaneous event Victor Hemming, the only boy in this class, had an advantage over the young ladies. His subject was "The Recall," which he treated impartially from several angles.

Olive Reynolds was a close second. Her topic was on the "Progress of Temperance in the United States." It was a difficult subject to handle but she was equal to the task. Margaret Denning, on "Woman Suffrage," favored the movement, and although she did not win, she made a very fine showing. Mary Cronin was the other extempore speaker, and she reviewed the present state of affairs in Mexico in a commendable manner.

The oratorical contest was also very interesting. Stanley Judd was expected to win a place as his speaking was excellent, together with the fact that he was the only one of the four speakers who wrote his own oration. Allen Dearborn, the winner, showed ability in his delivery, and he well deserved the place. Russell Smith was a strong speaker, and his subject was also a good one. He received second place in the ranking. Willard Hield gave a fine oration, and while he did not make a place this year, it is expected that he will excel in this line of forensic work next year.

The poem was won by Miss Catherine Sheridan with the title "The Birds." Ward Donahue was given honorable mention by the judges who passed on the poems earlier in the day. The prize piece was read by Supt. Buell and was appreciatively received.

The music by the orchestra and male Glee Club added to the interest of the program. Both the orchestra and the singers were encored several times, and they responded with many favorite selections.

The judges for the occasion were: J. T. Hooper, School for the Blind, F. J. Lowth, Rock county training school, Prof. Wade, department of oratory, Beloit college.

DECIDE TO ORGANIZE COUNTY Y. M. C. A.

Resolutions at Meeting of Interested Workers Held Yesterday—Will Raise a Budget.

Resolutions that Rock county be organized by Y. M. C. A. county and rural work, that a committee be appointed to effect an organization, and that an endeavor be made to obtain pledges for a budget of $2.00, no part of which is to be collected unless the whole is pledged, were passed at the meeting of men interested in the project held in the ordinary of the Myers Hotel yesterday afternoon. Messrs. A. E. Matheson, H. A. Molinaph of Clinton, and Howard Hubbell, secretary of county work in Wisconsin were directed to appoint a committee to effect an organization. The committee will represent the different parts of the county, and its composition will be announced later.

Great enthusiasm was shown for the work as outlined by Secretary Hubbell, who announced that between two and three hundred dollars had already been pledged to inaugurate it. Mr. Markham, who has made a careful survey of conditions in Rock county as they have a bearing upon the necessity and opportunity for Y. M. C. A. work among its boys, presented some very significant statistics showing the number of boys in the county outside the cities and their distribution in the various townships. The tables showing the loss of population in the rural townships was used effectively as an argument for a movement that would present the drift cityward.

According to statistics presented by Markham there are 2054 boys in Rock county between the ages of twelve and nineteen and a little more than forty per cent of them are attending school. In the town of Union there are 198, Magnolia 72, Spring Valley 123, Avon 56, Porter 89, Center 92, Plymouth 97, Newark 68, Fulton 268, Janesville 75, Rock 68, Beloit 81, Milton 167, Harmony 96, Turtle 83, Lima 76, Johnston, 73, Bradford 181, Clinton 126.

All rural townships in the county (those not containing cities) have lost population in the last ten years with the exception of three. The town of Union outside the city of Evansville lost 10 per cent of its population, Magnolia 20 per cent, Spring Valley including the village of Orfordville lost 5 per cent, Avon 10 per cent, Porter 22 per cent, Center 10 per cent, Plymouth 8 per cent, Newark 10 per cent, Fulton outside of Edgerton lost 17 1/2 per cent of its population, Janesville outside the city lost 5 per cent, Rock township 6 per cent, Milton inclusive of the villages of Milton and Milton Junction lost two per cent, La Prairie 11 per cent, Turtle four per cent, and Lima 10 per cent. The township of Beloit outside the city gained thirteen per cent, Harmony seven people, and Johnston two per cent. Bradford's population gained four per cent, and Clinton inclusive of the village lost ten people.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, April 12, 1873.— Attempted Suicide: Two young ladies aged about twenty years, attempted suicide at one of their homes in the town of Turtle last night. Both had attended a social that evening and at the close of the entertainment had bid their friends a cheery good-bye. It seems that the plans of the young ladies was to kill themselves together and had arranged to commit suicide on that night. On reaching their sleeping apartments each wrote a note of farewell to their parents, sisters and brothers and deposited them beneath their pillows. Then swallowing the required amount of strychnine they laid quietly down to die. But strychnine is rather vigorous in its actions and as it began its fearful work, the groans of the sufferers attracted the attention of the householders who proceeded to investigate the cause and discovered the two young ladies writhing in terrible agony. A doctor was called and he arrived in time to save their lives. The cause of this attempt at a double suicide is intimated to be a mutual affection for a young man who resides in their locality. The both couldn't marry him so they chose to watch over him as angels, and their attempt at assuming spiritual guardianship was nearly successful.

The liquor dealers and the temperance people of Clinton compromised the pending prosecutions brought against the former. The liquor men agree to quit the traffic and the temperance men agree to withdraw the suits. So there will be a dry spell in Clinton.

price of $985 ceases to be a wonder and becomes a plain business proposition and a matter of mere arithmetic.

Then imagine a site of ninety-four acres all dotted with buildings, testing roads, transportation facilities, a floor space of 3,789,720 square feet, seven thousand workmen, and the most up-to-the-minute machinery equipment that money can buy. That is the home of the Overland, a home in the full sense of the word, because every part used in the construction of the car enters here at one side of the plant, in the form of raw material moving ever onward in a steady stream, to leave at the other end, a product finished in every detail, and ready for the road.

The whole process goes on continuously hour by hour, day by day, each machine doing its part, each operative skilled in the one department, yet the whole factory so balanced and run that the greatest number of cars can be produced under a system that permits no part to double on its track or to go to the same machine twice.

Here is the answer: Just consider two automobile manufacturers. One builds five thousand cars in one season and the other (The Overland) produces forty thousand in the same time. A certain tool and machine equipment, which is needed by both manufacturers, no matter how few or how many cars they make, costs, say, $100,000. The cost of all manufacturing equipment must ultimately come out of the manufactured goods. That principle holds good for all manufactured articles, whether they be peanut roasters or automobiles. To the manufacturer of only five thousand cars the cost of this $100,000 equipment is, therefore $20 per car; to us it is only $2.50 per car.

When you multiply this saving by the many special appliances in use in the Overland plants, the fact that we offer you an absolutely high-class and fully-equipped car at the low

In Eighteen-eighty the Burr Robbins show was a railroad show and opened the season early in May. We had more or less rain and bad weather early in the season and while we had a brand new canvas for that year, Mr. Robbins made up his mind that the old one would be good enough till the weather was settled.

Along about the middle of June we were billed to show in Milwaukee for two days, which was on Monday and Tuesday. Something like the week before we were to be in Milwaukee, Mr. Robbins notified me that the new canvas would be shipped to Milwaukee and put up there for the first time. He said: "Above all places that I want to make a nice showing it is there." Up to that time we had never showed in so large a city and the impression that we made there, if a good one, would mean a lot to the show in the northwest, which country we were going direct to after leaving Milwaukee.

I was then the manager of the show and was supposed to see that everything was right on the inside before time to open the doors. I said to Mr. Robbins: "Leave that to me and I will show Milwaukee the finest show for the size of it that they ever looked at."

We arrived in Milwaukee on a Sunday morning. I had several gallons of paint on hand and had notified the boss canvasser days before that I would expect him to furnish me at least ten or twelve painters as I must paint all the center poles, side poles and quarter poles. The painters were soon at work and the ring bank was thrown up. I had let a contract for about eight loads of sawdust and the loads they brought were almost the size of a small house.

Our ring performance was the finest that any show the size of the Burr Robbins had ever given. Our principal bare-back rider was Charlie Fish, the finest trick rider in the world, and the lady equestrienne was Helen Cook, and they were two of the best riders that money could hire. The balance of the show was high class and while we only had one ring, the platform when the show opened Monday was a sight worth seeing.

All the poles inside were painted snow white, the eight loads of white sawdust covered the ground for a depth of two inches everywhere. I had ordered four large urns of plants to decorate the four centers of the platform and when Burr Robbins entered the show Monday afternoon with some guests he was as proud of it as P. T. Barnum or Adam Forepaugh ever were of Jumbo or the ten thousand dollar beauty. But he knew that to decorate the show in such a manner had cost some money. I had bought several dozen large flags and while Burr Robbins was the proudest man in Milwaukee that day over the appearance of the show, yet he could not wait until he called me onto the carpet and said:

"This is the last time that I will ever take the limit off as to how much money you can spend to dress up the show." But this made the hit of his lifetime in the show business. The Milwaukee papers came out that night and said that Milwaukee had never seen a cleaner and finer show for the size of it and would probably never see one again, and they all gave the show the finest write-up that was possible, and as it was copied all over the western country it gave the show a prestige in a city like Milwaukee that was worth many thousand dollars to the Burr Robbins show for the balance of the season. And many times later in the season Burr Robbins said to me: "The Milwaukee money that you spent, while it looked like a good deal for a two-days' stand, I do think was the cheapest advertising that the show ever had."

In those days there were only two great bareback riders and they were Charles Fish and James Robinson. Charlie Fish had ridden all over the world and had had more than one engagement for months at a time when his salary was $500 per week. He was what was known as a forward and back seat rider and he would be turning a somersault on a horse he would slip and go off onto the ground on purpose just to show the people how he could get back. He could leave the ring at almost any angle and leap onto the horse's back and stay there. To the average audience that was the best act that Charlie Fish did.

James Robinson retired from the business with plenty of money along about the middle eighties and for a time made his home in Louisville, Ky., where he had a brother-in-law who was a wealthy dry goods merchant, and Robinson, for some years it was said, was a silent partner in the business. About this time we showed in Louisville with the Adam Forepaugh show. Jim Robinson's old ring horse was at that time fourteen years old, but considered the finest ring horse in the business. A young lady rider, one of the best in the country although comparatively new by the name of Ashton, was anxious to buy a good ring horse, and when we got to Louisville she said to me: "If you can possibly buy Jim Robinson's ring horse I would like to have him. You can say to Mr. Robinson that I will pay him a good price for the horse, that I will take fine care of him, and when he is too old to work I will see that he has a good home for the balance of his life." On Sunday morning when we arrived in Louisville, I looked up Jim Robinson and told him that Miss Ashton would like to buy his ring horse, and while Mr. Robinson had expected to keep him as long as he lived, I finally bought him for Miss Ashton and paid Mr. Robinson $1,200. He was said to be the most perfect-gaited horse that ever went into the ring and Miss Ashton kept him for many years.

Jim Robinson is now an old man. Only a few years ago he spent the summer over at Delavan lake. Among circus people the world over, Delavan, Wisconsin, has been known for more than forty years as the home of many show people that have been more or less famous in the business. There were four of the Buckley boys, who for so many years were connected with the big Barnum hippodrome, W. C. Coup, the Costelloes, George Maden and many others that I might mention, but they are all dead now and are buried in the little cemetery at Delavan.

It is seldom that a circus visits Delavan to this day that they don't take time to take their hand and march to the cemetery and decorate the graves of the old show men whom they knew years ago; for Delavan, Wisconsin, was the only town in the western country that could boast of being the winter quarters of a circus more than fifty years ago, and that was the old Mable show which was bought by Adam Forepaugh in the fall of '63.

STATE COMMISSION WILL INVESTIGATE COMPLAINT FILED

Interesting Decision as to Physical Connection of Local Telephone Companies to be Decided.

According to the following dispatch from Madison a complaint has been filed with the railroad commission for an adjustment of differences between the Rock County and the Wisconsin Telephone companies at Janesville. The matter was brought to its attention by E. D. McGowan of Janesville, who asked for a decision regarding connection between the two lines. Under the commission law a ten-day period must elapse before the case can be taken up by the commission. Notice was served upon the company March 25, and while the commission can take up the case any time after April 6, it will probably receive consideration early in May, according to Secretary L. E. Gettle. It is the commission's intention to hear a general hearing on the complaint early next month.

Mr. McGowan stated this morning that his complaint was filed as an individual to ask an opinion on the state law passed two years ago which orders telephone companies in cities where there are two competing companies to give physical connection for long distance calls. Mr. McGowan believes that if the law is right the residents of Janesville should enjoy its advantages and if it is not a just law it should be decided adversely.

The decision will be of interest in view of the fact that it is alleged the Wisconsin Telephone company has failed to comply with the requirements of the law and refused to make the physical connection for long distance calls as prescribed.

THE PURCHASE PRICE IS INTERESTING TALE OF THE EARLY DAYS

Emerson Hough Writes Another Serial Which Starts in Today's Issue of the Gazette.

"The Purchase Price," Emerson Hough's novel, which starts in today's issue of the Gazette, is a noted novel, descriptive of life, people and events during the momentous doings leading up to the Civil war. Strong characters rise to the fore and beautiful women, of course, play an important part. What was the hidden secret of Senator Dunwoody's life revealed in the fire at Tallwoods? The story is one of a card game with a charming woman as the prize, the kidnapping of the heroine, clashes of armed men over slavery, and government intrigues are some of the thrilling episodes in the romance of Warville Dunwoody and Josephine Countess St. Auban. You can not afford to miss a word of this story.

SUGAR FACTORY HAS CUT DOWN ACREAGE

Pending Adverse Legislation in Washington Changes Present Plans of Rock County Sugar Company.

Owing to the proposed adverse legislation proposed by the democratic congress, the first effects felt by Rock county farmers is the announcement of the Rock County Sugar company, that they will cut down the total amount of their proposed acreage. This means that the question comes home directly to the producer in this locality. General Manager Osburn stated on Friday that the local factory had within three hundred odd acres of all they would contract for the present season owing to the probable change in the sugar tariff.

Lugh Hemingway, president of the Rock County and Neighboring Counties Beet Growers' association, stated this morning that his association had sent out circular letters to the eighty odd members, asking them to write their congressmen and senators, urging them to unite their efforts to defeat the proposed sugar schedule in the democratic tariff. Similar action has been taken by the Racine and Kenosha Growers' associations.

How to Write a Want Ad. to People to Sell Real Estate.

Bear in mind whether your Real Estate is to be sold as a Home advantage, a pure investment, or merely as a speculation. In each instance you appeal to a distinct and SEPARATE class of buyers. State whether City, Suburban, Country, Farm, Ranch, Coal or Timber.

When you touch the HOME sentiment, you arouse the strongest of human attachments. Scores of people spend thousands of dollars for rent that could be better put into a Home by means of some easy paying plan. Bring out these points in your Want Ad if you deal with city, suburban or residential Real Estate. Mention size of property and the natural advantages because of location, such as trees, parks, transportation. Detail improvements, water, sewerage, gas, lights, and the like. Tell the moral and educational advantages.

If your Real Estate is a pure investment, your Want Ad must appeal to hard-headed people of money. Most of the Real Estate sold comes under this class. Many of the points suggested above should also apply here. The value of the Property as a maker of MONEY must be dwelt upon. It is of the utmost importance that you state the condition of the title. Mention improvements, telling the TRUE condition of your property, and for what purpose it is best adapted.

If you offer Real Estate as a mere speculation, you appeal to those who are willing to take a RISK. Every advantage and POSSIBILITY must be stated in your Want Ad. After all, the people who come in on a proposition when the price is low—are the people who reap the benefits in the end when a proposition is successful. Make this point strong. This kind of Want Ad will cover all newly opened land, or towns being boomed.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

ARE YOU a negative or a positive?
The other day I went into a book shop to buy a birthday present for a small nephew. After some difficulty I corralled a clerk behind some bookshelves and stated my errand—"What have you in books about animals, for very small children?" The clerk turned a cold and incurious eye upon me. "We haven't anything at all," she said. She added nothing further and there was a finality in her manner which made me feel as if I had run up against a blank wall.

I went to another shop. A pleasant-faced clerk came forward to greet me. I asked the same question. She seemed much interested, as if I had propounded a most absorbing problem to her. "Well, let me see," she said. "I don't know that we have anything in stock just appropriate, but I'm sure we can order something. Or perhaps I can find something else that will do. Let me bring you a catalogue." In a few minutes that clerk had deftly persuaded me that a book of fairy tales would do quite as well as the other book, and had sold me an expensive copy.

Now the first clerk was a negative; her suggestion was entirely negative. She told me what she DIDN'T have but not what she DID have.

The second clerk was a positive. She passed lightly over the negative and at once began to radiate positive suggestion. And she got the sale which the other clerk might have just as well had.

The shops are an excellent place to study the positive and negative types, but clerks are by no means the only people who attract success by their positive suggestion or repel it by negative. That is what we are all doing each day.

For instance, two boys go hunting for a position. One of them approaches the prospective employer by saying, "I don't suppose you want a boy to do office work." The other says, "Can you use a bright, energetic boy around your place, I'm sure I could make good." You can imagine which gets a position first.

The mother who is a negative is always telling her children what NOT to do. "Don't do this," and "Don't do that," she cries from morning until night. Like "Dorothy Don't," her children almost wonder if that dread word isn't part of their names.

On the other hand, the mother who is a positive, uses the negative as little as possible. Instead she is full of positive suggestions. She knows that it is far better to distract the baby's attention by a harmless toy than to snatch the harmful one away from him, better to suggest a desirable play to the older children than the ban of the undesirable one.

In any club or society, it is the positives who scheme and plan and construct and create, and the negatives who simply exist.

Which are you, a negative or a positive?

ly, would tolerate dirty milk filled with disease bacteria and carrying to helpless infants and thoughtless adults death instead of life.

Custard.
Materials—Milk, one pint; eggs, three; sugar, four teaspoonfuls; salt, one pinch; nutmeg.

Utensils—Custard cup, measuring cup, tablespoon, baking pan, egg beater, bowl, pastry bag, star tube.

Directions—Beat the eggs without separating until light and well mixed. Add sugar and salt and beat a very little more. Now pour in the milk, mix all together and fill the custard cups two-thirds full, shaking a little nutmeg over the top of each. Stand them in the baking pan, partly filled with boiling water. Put into a moderate oven and bake until they are set. Try with the handle of a silver teaspoon stuck into the center of the custard. If the handle comes out clean the custard is done. Remove from the oven and serve cold.

Now, for a change, use four eggs, a quart of milk and one-fourth cup of sugar and proceed as above. Pour this into a baking pan and sprinkle with a little nutmeg. Cut three or four slices of bread and butter them. Dip buttered side into finely chopped pecan or walnut meats and lay nut side over the custard and bake as in the above recipe. This has fine food value.

MEAT DISHES.

By adding different food stuffs to meat the meat goes farther and is so lessening to the butcher's bill.

Veal With Spaghetti.—Cut two pounds of veal from the shoulder in small-sized pieces to serve, brown in hot fat, add two sliced onions, a tablespoonful of salt, a dash of red pepper, a tablespoonful of sugar, a can of tomatoes and a pound package of spaghetti. Cook slowly three hours on the back of the stove or in the caloric cooker. Mutton, with carrots and peas, may be cooked the same way.

Small pork sausage friend until partly cooked, then covered with a pop-over batter and baked is a good meat dish.

Hungarian Sauerkraut.—Mix together a cup of cooked rice, a half pound each of ground pork and beef, one egg and onion chopped and browned in butter, salt and pepper. Brown three tablespoonfuls of flour in kettle, turn in the sauerkraut, turn and heat through, adding a little water. Make oblong rolls of the meat mixture, lay in the kettle on the kraut and fold the meat in it. Cook slowly for an hour in the fireless cooker.

Oriental Stew.—Simmer gently together two cups of lamb or mutton, a cup of water, two tablespoonfuls of butter, a chopped onion, two small potatoes sliced, a cup of cooked peas or beans chopped. Season with salt and pepper and a teaspoonful of curry powder. Boil a half cup of rice, and when tender place as a border around the stew. The rice should be seasoned while cooking.

Surprise Biscuits.—Make a soft biscuit dough, roll out and cut in biscuits, spread with minced cooked beef that has been well seasoned. Lay on another biscuit (they should be quite thin), and bake. Pour over a rich, brown gravy and serve piping hot. This makes a nice supper dish.

CREDITS DEFEAT TO CORRUPT POLITICS

Mrs. Helen N. Bates.

"There can be no question as to the power arrayed against us, a power that works in the dark and springs up suddenly to defeat anything that threatens its downfall," recently declared Mrs. Helen N. Bates, president of the Maine Woman Suffrage Association. A resolution before the Maine Legislature providing for the submission to the people of a constitutional amendment providing for equal suffrage had just been defeated by a narrow margin.

"We are not discouraged," continued Mrs. Bates, "but will fight with new zeal, determined to win in 1915."

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Please tell me who is right: I say it is wrong and my husband, says it's no harm for him to be with other women. He has nice children and a good and respectable wife. He says it's no harm for him to go and see another woman, as he cares more for her than he does for me. I love him dearly and he knows I do. But he still says awful things to me. It seems as if he enjoys it to make my heart ache and to make me cry.

I do all I can to make my home comfortable and happy and I always seem to have lots of friends. He is aged thirty-four; I am twenty-five. Don't you think he is old enough to judge what is right from wrong. He is awfully stubborn and wants his way always.

BROKEN HEARTED MOTHER.

Poor mother! You've got hold of one of those brutes in human form whose delight is to torture a helpless and loving woman.

There's only one remedy that I can see. Harden your heart and make him think that you are just as indifferent to him as he says he is to you. Cultivate your friends, dress prettily, and at least pretend that you are having a splendid time without bothering or concerning him. If he talks about the other woman, laugh at him. If he wants to stay home with you, tell him you'd rather he would go out. Keep your home nice, but get some other interest in life.

Yes—He is certainly old enough to know better. When he married you he promised to cherish and protect you. He is not protecting you or his children when he allows an-

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

For Chapped Hands.
Wild Rose Jelly—One ounce glycerine, one ounce alcohol, one ounce rose leaf perfume, one quart soft water, five cents' worth gum tragacanth. Dissolve gum tragacanth in water over night, then mix together, let stand a few days, strain.

This is fine for chapped hands.

The Table.
Stale Bread Hot Cakes—Take stale bread, put in pan of water, let stand until soft, then squeeze out water and put with the bread two eggs, a pinch of salt, one cup milk, mix three spoons baking powder with flour—use enough flour to make a stiff batter. Put skillet on stove with some good hot lard, drop batter by tablespoonfuls, fry like doughnuts. Have lard to cover. Serve hot with syrup.

Vegetable Soup When Meat Is Scarce.—Cook vegetables in water to which a lump of butter (about the size of walnut to a quart of soup) has been added. We like this just as well as though made with meat.

Mashed Potato Fried Cakes.—Two cups mashed potato, 1½ cups sugar, five tablespoonfuls melted butter, three well-beaten eggs, one cup sweet milk, five teaspoonfuls baking powder, 5½ cups flour, teaspoon nutmeg. These are fine, will not soak up the grease when frying and will keep nice and moist.

Rhubarb Pie.—Two cups rhubarb chopped fine, one cup sugar, one tablespoon flour, yolks two eggs. Stir all together and bake with one crust. Let pie cool, make frosting with whites of eggs, two tablespoonfuls sugar, put on top of pie and put in oven to brown.

Things Worth Knowing.

When making poppie I take one cup (or more, according to amount I wish to make) of meat stock, to mix dough, in place of water. Fine and requires no lard.

other woman to fascinate him.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been going with a young man my same age for ten years and feel he ought to marry me, as he has talked a great deal of it, and I have everything a girl needs for housekeeping; also money, and so has he. But there is something I don't know—why he cannot make up his mind to make a home. I am getting disgusted, yet I think too much of him to give him up. He says he loves me and will never marry any one but me. But people are talking about us and I feel ashamed of going with him so long. Will you please tell me the best thing to do?

Ten years is a mighty long time to wait. I think I would give him the "Grand Bounce." Grace.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—I am a young man of nineteen and have been keeping company with a young woman one year my junior, for about ten months. Wishing to discontinue my affections toward her, as I know it is in vain, how could I do so without making her unhappy?

(2)—Should a girl be given as a present to a girl before she is engaged?

(3)—A girl of eighteen soon gets over an affair with a boy of nine years. Her feeling won't be hurt for long. "T. C." if you drop of her life right now, and take your affections elsewhere. (2)—No.

You will be very happy in companionship with others, but material anxieties will thrust themselves before you and it will be well for you if you deny yourself pleasure, and company to attend to ways and means of advancement.

When one does not happen to have an old blanket, which is usually used as a padding for the ironing board, a lot of old newspapers will be found to be an excellent substitute. Lay them smoothly on the board until you have the required thickness; then cover with a piece of cotton. The papers can be renewed from time to time and you always have a clean, smooth board.

PROLOGUE.

What happens when a strong man, daring to the point of recklessness, steps away from the path of conventionality to reach for the happiness that has been denied to him? It depends on the woman in the case. In this story she is no ordinary woman, but fully a match in resources and energy for the man who desired her so greatly that he risked wealth and position and good name for her. Woven with the story of these two is an interesting thread of plotting and politics and warfare at a stirring time in American history. Figuring in the tale are men highly placed, one of them in the White House.

CHAPTER I.

A Lady in Company.

MADAM, you are charming! You have not slept, and yet you smile. No man could ask a better prisoner."

She turned to him, smiling faintly. With just the turn of a shoulder she indicated the water front, where, at the end of the dock on which they stood, lay the good ship Mount Vernon, river packet, the black smoke already pouring from her stacks. In turn he smiled and also shrugged a shoulder.

"My dear lady, I could journey on forever with one so young and pleasant as yourself. I will give you my promise in exchange for your parole."

Now her gesture was more positive, her glance flashed more keenly at him. "Do not be too rash," she answered. "My parole runs only while we travel together privately. As soon as we reach coach or boat matters will change. I reserve the right of any prisoner to secure life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. It was well enough when we traveled in our own private express, from Washington here to Pittsburgh, for then there was no chance for escape. Here my jailer may perhaps have some trouble with me."

At the word "jailer" the fabled countenance of young Captain Carlisle flashed yet redder beneath its tan. His lips set still more tightly under the beard, reddish mustache. With a gesture of impatience he lifted his military hat and passed a hand over his auburn hair which flamed above his white forehead. His slim figure stiffened; even so his face became more stern. Clad in the full regiments of his rank he made a not unmanly figure as he stood there, though hardly taller than this splendid woman whom he addressed.

She walked to and fro, pausing to turn now and then, impatient, uneasy, like some caged creature.

"My dear Countess St. Auban," said he, more formally, "I wish that you might never use that word with me again—jailer! I am only doing my duty as a soldier. The army has offered to it all sorts of unpleasant tasks. They selected me as agent for your disappearance because I am an army officer. I had no option. I must obey."

"Why did you bring me here?"

"That I do not know. I could not answer you even did I know."

"And why did I come?" she mused half to herself. "When I left the carriage with my maid, Jeanne, there, when I passed through that dark tunnel at midnight, I felt that something was wrong. When the door of the railway coach was opened I felt that conviction grow. When you met me—the first time I ever saw you, sir—I felt my heart turn cold."

"Madam!"

"And when the door of the coach closed on myself and my maid—when we rolled on away from the city, in spite of all I could do or say—why, then, sir, you were my jailer. Have matters changed since then?"

"Madam, from the first you were splendid. You showed pure courage."

"Fear wins nothing."

"Precisely. Then let us not fear what the future may have for us. I have no directions beyond this point, Pittsburgh. I was to take boat here, that was all. I was to convey you out into the west, somewhere, anywhere, no one was to know where, and some way, any way, my instructions were I was to lose you. I have had no definite instructions as to how that should be done, my dear countess."

"The agent who conveyed my orders to me—comes from Kentucky, you see—said to me that, while I could not bowstring you, it would be quite proper to put you in a sack and throw you overboard. 'Only,' said he to me, 'be sure that you do not drop her anywhere along the coast of my own state of Kentucky, for if you do she will untie the sack and swim ashore into my constituency, where I have trouble enough without the Countess St. Auban, active abolitionist, to increase it. Trouble,' said he to me, 'thy name is Josephine St. Auban!'

"Then I am safe until we get below the Kentucky shore?" she queried calmly.

"I beg you not to feel disturbed," he began.

"Will you set me down at Louisville?"

"Madam, I cannot."

"You have not been hampered with extraordinary orders."

"I have no stricter orders at any time than those I take from my own conscience, madam. I must act for your own good as well as for that of others."

Her lip curled now. "Then not even this country is free! Even here there are secret tribunals. Even here there are hired braves!"

"Ah, madam, please, not that! I beg of you."

"Excellently kind of you all to care so tenderly for me—and yourselves! I, only a woman, living openly, with all will for none, paying my own way, violating no law of the land!"

"Your words are very bitter, madam."

"The more bitter because they are true. You will release me then at Cairo below?"

"I cannot promise, madam. You would be back in Washington by the first boats and trains. I make no promises since you yourself make none."

"What are your plans out there beyond?"

"You ask it frankly, and with equal frankness I say I do not know. Indeed, I am not fully advised in all this matter. It was imperative to get you out of Washington, and if so it is equally imperative to keep you out of Washington. I cannot agree to set you down at Cairo or at any intermediate point. I will only give my promise in return for your own parole. That I would take as quickly as though it were the word of any officer, but you do not give it."

"No, I do not. I am my own mistress. I am going to escape as soon as I can."

He touched his cap in salute. "Very well, then. I love courage, and you have it. That will carry you through. Her face clouded for the first time. "I have not dared to think of that," she said. "So long as we came in the special train we did well enough, as I have said; but now, here in the open, in public, before the eyes of all, who am I, and who are you to me? I am not your mother?"

"Scarcely, at twenty-three or four."

He pursed a judicial lip.

"Nor your sister?"

"No."

"Nor your wife?"

"No." He flushed here, although he answered simply.

"Nor your assistant in any way?"

His face lighted suddenly.

"Why not?" said he. "Can't you be my amanuensis—that sort of thing, you see? Come, we must think of this. This is where my conscience hurts me. I can't bear to have my duty hurt you."

"Personally, I thank you; professionally, I must fight you. You have taken away that which is dearer than anything else, that which your government guarantees to every human being in this country—liberty."

"Do not make our journey longer by leaving it more difficult. God knows, I am beset enough even as it is now. But be sure our government shall never, at least while I am its agent, condemn you to any situation unsuited to a gentleman."

A very high compliment had been paid you in holding you dangerous because of your personal charm. That is why you were put out of Washington—because you were dangerous. They thought you could get the ear of any man—make him divulge secrets which he ought to keep."

"Oh, thank you, thank you!" She clasped her hands together, mockingly.

"Call it cruel of me, if you like, to take you by the hand and lead you gently away from danger for just a few days. Call me jailer, if you like. None the less it is my duty. It began well when you gave me your parole so that I need not sit nodding and blinking over against you, also nodding and blinking all night long. I have slept like a boy, confident in your word. Now, you have banished sleep. Nodding and blinking, I must henceforth watch you, nodding and blinking, unhappy, uncomfortable; whereas, were it in my power, I would never have you know the first atom of discomfort."

"There, there! I am but an amanuensis, my dear Captain Carlisle. You ask me not to attempt any escape?"

"Yes."

"Why, I would agree to as much as that. It is, as you say, a matter of indifference to me whether I leave the boat at Cairo or at some point farther westward. Of course I would return to Washington as soon as I escaped from bondage."

"Excellent, madam! Now, please add that you will not attempt to communicate with any person on the boat or on shore."

"No; that I will not agree to as a condition."

"Then still you leave it very hard for me."

She only smiled at him again, her slow, deliberate smile; yet there was in it no trace of hardness or sarcasm. Captain Edward Carlisle, soldier as he was, martinet as he was, felt a curious sensation of helplessness seize upon him as he met her steady gaze, her winning smile. He could not tell what this prisoner might do. He cursed the fate which had assigned such duty.

Hesitating, the young officer turned his gaze over the wide dock, now covered with hurrying figures, with massed troops, with the confusion preceding the departure of a river boat. The very confusion for the time seemed to afford safety. Carlisle was upon the point of frowning a long breath of relief, but then as he turned to ask his companion to accompany him aboard the boat, he caught sight of an approaching figure which he seemed to recognize.

This prisoner was a man who in any company would have seemed striking, complexion fair, and with blue or gray eyes, he was tall as any viking, as had in the shoulder. He was smooth-faced, with fresh skin and well developed figure. His air of self confidence seemed that of a man unused to having his own way. As he walked, distinguished in appearance, he had a half savage look, as though ignorant or scornful of the tenderer ways of civilization. A leader this man might be, a poor follower always.

Dinner Stories

He was an author, but an author without authority—which means, using the vernacular of the street, his stuff never got across. If his ability had equaled his industry, he would have had every novelist looking like an idler.

On this particular morning he walked into the office of a publisher who had rejected two or three tales of his manuscripts.

"Now, look here," said the author, "on the level, how can I sell a good book?"

The publisher's advice was excellent. He said:

"Write one."

An old negress entered an Episcopal church and, during the services, was continually heard to shout "Amen! Oh, Lord!" thereby disturbing the entire congregation.

Father John's Medicine.

In a recent letter from Cincinnati, Miss Emma Gramke says: "My system was terribly run down and I have improved very much since I took Father John's Medicine. I have already recommended it to several of my friends." (Signed) Miss Emma Gramke, 1573 Tremont street, Fairmount, Cincinnati, O.

Remember Father John's Medicine is a pure food medicine that builds new strength and flesh. A doctor's prescription, free from alcohol or dangerous drugs.

"Homes of Character"—An American Home.

An Exceptional Attractive Home Which Can be Built With a Varied Exterior to Suit the Individual Taste of the Builder.

As shown in the sketch this home is built with wide siding first story and rough shingles above. A large porch extends across the front of the house and off the center of this opens good-sized hall leading directly to the living room, dining room and stairway to the second floor. This stairway being a combination stairway with an entrance from the kitchen.

The living room extends along one side of the house with built in seat and bookcases at one end and a large fireplace in the center of the outer wall. Unusual wall space afford an opportunity to show the furniture, a feature which most women readers will appreciate.

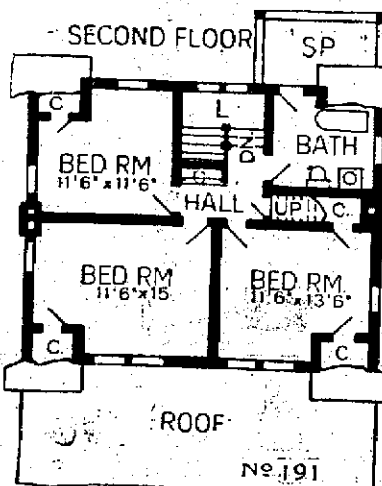

The dining room is exceedingly well lighted and French door centering on one wall lead to the hall, while the windows afford a fine view of the street.

The attention of women readers of The Gazette is directed to the kitchen and its arrangements. The sink and the drain board extend along the entire side of one wall with cupboard at each end, leaving free working space above the sink and board. An unusual feature of the kitchen is a door opening directly off the kitchen as does a rear porch.

The second floor of this house is compact. From a small hall with doors open into three large bedrooms and a bath, and a fifth door leads to the attic stairway. Each bedroom contains a large closet, while an airing porch is reached by a door from the bathroom. A large linen closet has been placed in the hall, convenient of access from all the rooms.

This house can be built for $2500.00 under favorable conditions, and under ordinary circumstances should not cost to exceed $3000.00, all depending upon finishing.

Mr. John Henry Newson, designer of Home No. 191, will willingly answer any inquiries which Gazette readers care to make, and while it is not absolutely essential that a self-addressed stamped envelope be enclosed with the inquiry, it is good business form. All letters of inquiry should be addressed to John Henry Newson, "Homes of Character Department," The Gazette.
